Summer Fun on a Budget

It's Summer! The kids are out of school and they are more rambunctious than ever! What do you do to keep them busy on a tight budget?

The obvious free things to do anywhere are playgrounds, picnics, and play dates, but there are more things available that you may not be aware of.

1) Check with local stores.

Michaels has a kids craft event almost every weekend that kids can attend while you shop. It only costs $2 for each child to cover the cost of materials. Check with your local store for details or on their website.

Home Depot and Lowes both offer a FREE workshop for kids a couple Saturday's a month. Kids can build their own project based around a holiday or just for fun. You must register online prior to this event.

2) Check the library.

Most libraries have a story time assigned for different ages or other events to keep kids involved in reading and hands on activities. Check your local library for information on upcoming events.

3) Water Park, Pool, Amusements, Fairs

Cheap is not what you think of when you think of an amusement park or water play area for the day, but there are ways to get discounts on these day out events. Some places offer discount tickets when you purchase online prior to the entrance so check online first. You should also stop at a local hotel and look at the brochures for visitors. Some local parks offer discount coupons for visitors to the area. If those are still high, check Groupon for a discount ticket sales!

Summer can be fun without costing you everything saved. A little planning and creative thinking can give you and your children a memorable Summer!
